Tutor Honor Code

Please pick when you are able to tutor, even you are free at one period couple days a week. Later, users will schedule time with you directly.

By joining 2Tr as a registered tutor, you are agreeing to provide your tutoring services under the following 2Tr Honor Code:

     I. You will not endorse the use of cheating via an online source, whether this involves plagiarism, looking up answers, or any other way of completing an assignment that violates the expectations of the teacher(s) who assigned your student(s) their work.

     II. You will not give your student(s) any answers to their assignment, complete the assignment for them, or attempt to pass your work off as theirs in any shape of form.

     III. The student(s) you meet with and their struggles will remain confidential between you, your student(s), and their teacher(s).

     IV. It is an expectation that each student you work with will be treated with respect and understanding regardless of how you perceive they are acting towards you. If there is a situation where your student is disrespecting you, it is your responsibility to end the tutoring session and report their misconduct to their teacher. Otherwise it is expected that you tutor students maintaining your conduct with a great deal of professionalism.

     V. It is an expectation that you follow through on showing up to scheduled sessions and not leaving your student until the session is over, which will be decided between you and your student as to when the session is over.

     VI. It is an expectation that you follow the Academic Honesty guidelines of Lyndon Institute's Student Handbook

If any misconduct is reported to the 2Tr Supervisory Council that violates the guidelines set within the 2Tr Honor Code, consequences include but are not limited to:

- Voided community service hours and mandatory tutor training courses
- Removal and banning from the 2Tr Program
- School disciplinary action based on that of the student handbook

These consequences and others will be implemented by the 2Tr Supervisory Council and/or Lyndon Institute and their severity will be based on the level of misconduct regarding the violation.
